Emergency Architects Australia

Emergency Architects Australia (EAA) is a not for profit professional organisation affiliated with partner organisations in France and Canada. Established in 2005, we provide architectural advice, planning, project management and building support in South East Asia and the Pacific Region to communities:

- Who have suffered natural disasters or the effects of conflict and
- Who are seeking to reduce avoidable damage from foreseeable extreme events.

Some of the significant work we have achieved over the past five years includes:

- Design of a temporary village and new community hall for communities impacted by the Victorian bushfires
- The design and construction of 160 houses in Sigli Aceh partnering with Australian Red Cross
- Run shelter courses in the Solomon Islands teaching people how to brace their houses after the 2007 earthquake and tsunami
- Designed and built school buildings and teachers' housing in the Solomon Islands after the 2007 earthquake and tsunami.

Committed volunteers enable us to provide our high level professional services at a minimal cost. We make the aid go further through:

- Involving communities in the design process
- Using local techniques and materials
- Promoting local involvement in construction management
- Environmentally responsible and sustainable projects

As a result, the communities have real ownership of their new buildings and are dedicated to maintaining them.

In 2010 we are working in Solomon Islands, Timor Leste, Papua New Guinea and the Cook Islands providing advice and design services on a variety of projects addressing impacts of climate change, natural disasters and war.

We partner with organisations such as The European Union, UNHCR, UNICEF, NZAID, Australian Red Cross, World Vision, and Caritas essentially acting as consultants to these organisations. Important supporters include -The Union of International Architects, The Australian Institute of Architects and the Council of the City of Sydney.

We strive to keep our costs as low as possible and volunteer assistance is a major contributor to this.

Partners, sponsors, and donors make a real difference. We would like your support for the important work that we do.

If you would like more detailed information please contact our GM Carla Wachmiller.

Yours Sincerely,

David Chesterman

SPONSORING EAA

EAA is supported in a number of ways, we act as consultants to our partners, we receive tax deductible donations for specific overseas projects, a number of architectural practices provide services pro-bono, we receive pro-bono legal advice, the City Council provides rent free space, we receive in kind assistance from suppliers, and we have many volunteers.

However we need sponsors to enable us to maintain back up services and readiness to respond quickly to disasters. Such sponsorship is essential to our existence. The benefits to sponsors set out below may allow sponsorship to be treated as a business tax deduction. Please seek independent advice.
